The questions have anyone of following response types associated with them:

A. Strongly Disagree, Disagree, Indifferent, Agree, Strongly Agree (Agreement)
B. Not at All, Somewhat, Moderately, Mostly, A Great Deal (Extent)
C. Very Light, Light, Average, Heavy, Very Heavy (Rigour)

Likert Scale

Each question can be graded on a scale of 5 to 1.

- Score 5: represents Strongly Agree if response type of question is 'a', A Great Deal in response type 'b' and Very Heavy in response type 'c'
- Score 4: represents Agree if response type of question is 'a', Mostly in response type 'b' and Heavy in response type 'c'
- Score 3: represents Indifferent if response type of question is 'a', Moderately in response type 'b' and Average in response type 'c'
- Score 2: represents Disagree if response type of question is 'a', Somewhat in response type 'b' and Light in response type 'c'
- Score 1: represents Strongly Disagree if response type of question is 'a', Not at All in response type 'b' and Very Light in response type 'c'

Learning & Teaching Agree Percentage

This scale represents the ratio of positive responses against all the responses. Mathematically it is represented as

$$\frac{\text{(Strongly Agree/A Great Deal/Very Heavy) + (Agree/Mostly/Heavy)}}{\text{(Strongly Disagree/Not at All/Very Light) + (Disagree/Somewhat/Light) + (Indifferent/Moderately/Average)}}$$

- Course (Cr): represents the L&T percentage of a question throughout the Course.
- Subject (Sb): represents the L&T percentage of a question throughout the Subject Area.
- School (Sc): represents the L&T percentage of a question throughout the School.
- University (Un): represents the L&T percentage of a question throughout the University.

Response Rate

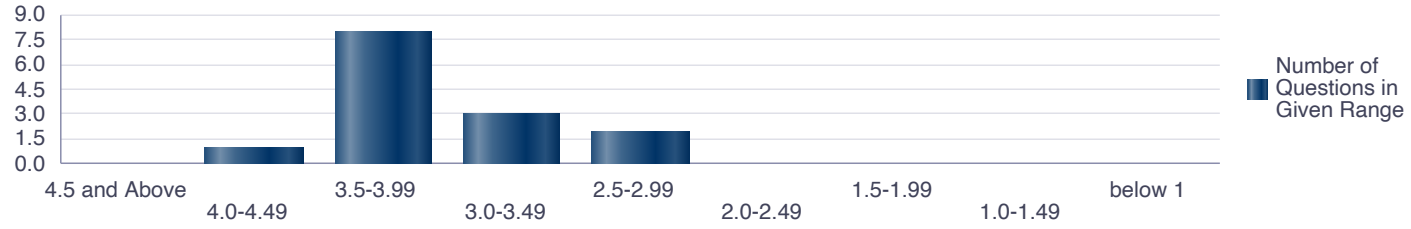

- Response Rate = (Total Responses / Total Enrollment) x 100

Weighted Average

- Weighted Average = $\sum$ (Mean of the responses of question of each domain x Count of question in each domain / Total questions)

Evaluation Comments

Evaluation Mode: (Final)

1	Please provide feedback on how this course can be improved	Domain:

* It was his first time teaching but like he introduced response papers one week in and then after 2 response papers were conducted he said he¿¿¿s honing to randomly select one to be graded based on nothing - just want he wants. I didn¿¿¿t really appreciate this as he took 10 response papers and only 5 were marked. It would have been better if all of them were marked and an average was put
* The course content was generally light. Reading slides was generally enough to get a good grade. I feel like if the response paper were related to or sometimes related to the readings it might have lead to better learning. The slides are very straightforward and easy so readings and interesting articles in the field might have been a good addition (and maybe response papers could occasionally include that content?). This might also create a bigger dev as the course gets a bit harder; but overall a good instructor and a good course
* I think it can be made a little less theoretical based, theory should be taught but testing should be more about understanding than rote learning. The instructor can give case studies tailored to course content and ask for solutions etc

2	What aspects of the course were most valuable to your learning	Domain:

* The professor is clear in his expectations and explanations. He's approachable so whenever I had an issue I felt very comfortable to go up to him and as for advice. Overall I think the instructor is amazing and even though I felt at times the course content was a little boring his demeanor and interest in the topics made up for it.
* The instructor entertained my intellectual debates which generally aided in my understanding of economic modelling very well
